

International and UK artists brought together in the UK for radical craft exhibition

34 international and UK artists who express their creativity unbounded by taught conventions are showing work in Radical Craft: Alternative Ways of Making, a Craftspace and Outside In touring exhibition launching at Pallant House Gallery on 12th March 2016. The exhibition, which is co-curated by Laura Hamilton, will showcase artworks by historically renowned artists associated with Outsider Art and contemporary self-taught artists who see themselves as facing barriers to the art world for reasons including health, disability, social circumstance or isolation; 20 of whom have been selected from open submissions.

Drawn from across three continents, 16 of the artists use textiles as a medium in their work, revealing an inventive use of materials and improvised techniques, from abstract wrapped sculptural forms and woven grass garments to three dimensional lace structures and life-sized wicker figures. Each of the artists' individual backgrounds and paths of creative development occupy a different world to our more typical perception of the artist or craftsman. Most have never received any formal art training, although their practices may have been nurtured and encouraged in specialist centres or studios. Their work or creative impulses have been developed with independence, perceptual senses and an obvious lack of inhibition which is rarely aimed at a particular audience or marketplace.

Angus McPhee (Scotland), secretly wove numerous garments from grasses, vegetation and sheep's wool picked from barbed wire fences found in the grounds of the hospital he lived in. Judith Scott (USA), born profoundly deaf, mute and with Down's syndrome, invented her own technique to wrap found objects in carefully selected yarns. Marie-Rose Lortet (France), builds intricate 'works in space', often in the form of houses, rooms and windows, using lace stiffened with fibre resin or sugar. Pascal Tassini (Belgium), has a special interest in weddings and bridal attire and produces elaborate Baroque-style headdresses.

Other artists include: Nek Chand Saini's (India) near life sized cloth figures; Erkki Pekkarinen's (Finland) woven birch bark sculptures; Atsushi Yoshimoto's (Japan) intricately knotted textiles Horace Lindezey's (UK) wire and stitched drawings of the seven suits he owns 'for special occasional days'; Andrew Omoding's (UK) colourful abstract imaginings of family and Africa; Aradne's (UK) machine embroidered web-like figurative worlds created on dissolvable fabric and Julia Krause-Harder's (Germany) large mixed media dinosaurs.

The panel for the UK open selection included Alice Kettle, Textile Artist; Phil Baird, Artist and Outside In Award Winner; Laura Hamilton, Co-curator of Radical Craft; Katy Norris, Curator Pallant House Gallery and Deirdre Figueiredo, Director of Craftspace.

Tour venues include Oriels Davies and Aberystwyth Arts Centre in Wales, Tullie House Museum & Art Gallery, Carlisle and The Barony Centre, West Kilbride. The exhibition marks key anniversaries; 10 years of Outside In and 30 years of Craftspace.

NOTES TO EDITOR:

Radical Craft combines Outside In's fourth triennial open art exhibition and Craftspace's touring exhibitions programme which reflects developments in craft. It will showcase UK creativity by artists who face barriers to the art world for reasons including health, disability, social circumstance or isolation, and who have submitted their work through the Outside In website. The works selected through this open call out will be displayed alongside pieces by historically renowned and invited contemporary Outsider and self-taught artists.

Award

Exhibiting invited artist Marie-Rose Lortet will choose one Award Winner from the selected works to receive a solo show at Pallant House Gallery at a later date. Lortet is often associated with the field of outsider art, and her signature lace objects and architectural constructions have been exhibited widely across Europe and are in the Collection de L'Art Brut in Lausanne, Switzerland, and will this year be shown at the Outsider Art Fair in New York for the first time. Lortet says: "I am proud and grateful to be chosen as the judge. I am excited to look attentively at the artists' creations and what the work reveals about their life. It will be a hard choice without a doubt."

Outside In: www.outsidein.org.uk

Since its inception in 2006, Outside In has provided an increasingly international platform for artists who see themselves as facing barriers to the art world for reasons including health, disability, social circumstance or isolation. The goal of the project is to create a fairer art world which rejects traditional values and institutional judgements about whose work can and should be displayed. The project won the Charity Award for Arts, Culture and Heritage in 2013 and in the past three years has had thirty exhibitions. Currently it supports over 2000 artists. The project is based at Pallant House Gallery, where it was founded.

The triennial open art exhibitions are Outside In's main vehicle. First held in 2007, featuring 100 artists from across Sussex, the project went national in 2012, and has gone on to engage more than 5,000 artists and 270,000 audience members.

Craftspace: www.craftspace.co.uk

Craftspace is a leading craft development organisation. It commissions exceptional, world class contemporary craft and champions makers to take an active role in civil society. It connects creative practice with diverse communities of interest and place through a range of activities and partnerships. These include curating touring exhibitions, producing creative events, action research and public learning and engagement projects.

Pallant House Gallery: www.pallant.org.uk

Pallant House Gallery is a unique combination of an historic Queen Anne townhouse and contemporary extensions, housing one of the best collections of Modern British art in the country, including important works by Peter Blake, Lucian Freud, Eduardo Paolozzi and Graham Sutherland. Widely acclaimed for its innovative temporary exhibitions and exemplary Learning and Community Programme, the Gallery has won numerous awards since re-opening in 2006, including the Gulbenkian Prize; the largest for arts and cultural organisations in the country.

The Radical Craft exhibition has been programmed to run in conjunction with an exhibition looking at John Piper's textile work providing a fitting focus on craft across the temporary exhibition spaces.
